Using My NCBI

Erin Eldermire, Veterinary Outreach and Scholarly Services Librarian, and Sarah Young, Health Science and Policy Librarian, will provide an overview of NCBI (National Center for Biotechnology Information) tools that are now recommended or required for use in compliance with the NIH Public Access Policy. These include using My Bibliography to manage publications and create reports, and SciENCv to create the NIH Biosketch now required as a part of the grant reporting and application process.

Please send me any questions you might have about Using My NCBI, prior to the Roundtable session, so I can provide them to Sarah and Erin in advance.

We look forward to seeing you August 20!
